WALLACK'S.

Kears of Search-And Deliberately Saccing him Down.

From the Nevada (Mo) Times, itih.

On Wednesday last a man named Layton arrived at Baltown, and put up at the hotel kept by Mr. Pennington. He appeared to be a very quiet man, was riding a splendid horse, and wore a brace of revolvers. He talked very little, but made some casual inquiries about a man by the name of Bedford. On Thursday he was absent all day, returned for the evening, and on Frioay made arrangements to have his horse taken care of two or three days; but in a short time he changed his mind—got his horse. Bred off and cleaned up his pistois, and said he would take a ride.

days; but in a short time he changed his mind—got his horse, fired off and cleaned up his pistoss, and said he would take a ride.

While riding along he was overtaken by one of the citizens of Osase, who was going to Marsh Owen's bouse, where they were threshing wheat. When they reacned Owen's hotse, Layton asked the neighbor. "Is this the road we go?" The gentleman answered, "That is according to where you want to go." Layton said, "On, snywhere; not particular." They rode down the lane sear ten house, got off their horses, and hitched them to the fence, and tone jumped over into the yard where Bedford was at work. Immediately after crossing the fence Layton began pulling off the glove of his right hand with his teeth, and walking toward the mackine, which was still at the time.

When within about thirty steps of the thresher. Bedford saw him, turned, and ran. Layton drew his pistol and fired, the first shot dropping him. Bedford arose and started again, when another shot brought him to the ground. Then Layton stepped up to him, and park another ball through him as he lay on the ground. Bedford was snot through the thigh, through the bowels from back to front, and through the chest-from back to front, penetrating the lungs. After firing the third shot, and seeing his victim lying helpless before him with the blood running from his mouth, he turned and walked to his horse, mounted, and telsurely cantered out to the mouth of the lane, and then walked his horse wounted out to the mouth of the lane, and then walked his horse rounding the war Layton never spoke a word after crossing the fence, but did his work coolly and deliberately.

It appears that during the war Layton had Bedford to his employ. He trusted him with his family and his honor, which Bedford took advantage of by seducing Layton's wife, for which he has new paid the penalty. Layton has been hunting his victim for

A late case of Millerism in Delaware came to grief in a peculiar manner. Mr. and Mrs. Caliender of that State, were so firmly convinced that the end of all things had arrived, that, arrayed in white garments sewed up at the extremities, to guard against contingencies of wind and weather, they recently hied them to the top of their woodshed awaiting the blowing of Gabrier's trump. It was night—night, calm and lustrous—and the New Adventists patiently awaited the signal. In the mean time something commenced to slip along the roof; it proved to be Mrs. Caliender herself. The laay, who had hored to ascend, now commenced to descend at a rapid and perilous cace, seriously incommoded in her movements by the sewed-up garments. Floally she rolled off the roof to the ground, a distance of five feet. Mr. Cellender, meanwhile, bound in his dress in like manner to his spouse, helplessly watched the proceeding; but when Mrs. Callender's shriek announced that she had reached mother earth, he bestirred himself to assist her. Rending his bends with a herculeun effort he stepped lightly down the ladder whereby they had ascended, and hastened to the aid of Mrs. Callender, whom he found suffering from a dislocated ankle. The presence of the dector, and the necessity of paying but found suffering from a dislocated ankle. The pre-erce of the dector, and the necessity of paying his bis awinging fee, wound up in the most worldly an practical manner possible, this "strange, evenith history" of Mr. and Mrs. Callender of Delaware.

Presents at Weddings.

Presents at Weddings.

From the Albany argus.

The most notable of these mortal events which give the contracting parties a new start in life occurred on Tuesday evening last, when hiss Emily Leeds and Mr. Thomas Keene were married at Trinlity Chapel. As both tarties occupy a fine position in social life, and are well known in fashionable circuites, the gathering at the church was very sristocratic, and everything connected with the nuptials passed off in the most recherché order. The bride's dress was of heavy white satin, beautifully trimmed with rich lace, vell of tulle and orange blossom wreath with diamonds, to add their brilliancy to ber own personal charms. The attendace of four bridesmaids, and the same number of groomsmen and ushers, was considered requisite on this occation. The presents are said to represent about litty thousand dol are in value.

Plessant as it is to be the recipient of such glits, this practice of placing a marketable estimate on such offerings should go out of fashion with the custom of displaying them, so as to attract admiration, or it may be excite envy. Au effort is being made, and with some success, to do away with the custom of displaying them, so as to attract admiration, or it may be excite envy. Au effort is being made, and with some success, to do away with the interesting and time and time. Ten weddings are announced to take place on Tuesday, the 18th inst., of which inhere withe an equal division as regards church and home weddings. A very sensible plan of making the bridel tour extend to our El Dorado, instead of going to Europe, now prevails. A visit to California's genial cline must be in unison with harmonious love. Where all is bright and golden, there must be sympathy with the day-dreams of those starting anew in the journey of file.

Recorder Hackett as a Dead Shot.

Recorder Hackett as a Dead Shot.

Lorrespondence of the Springfield Republican.

I notice your statement of Recorder Hackett's shooting a clam-shell held by Mr. James G. Bennett, Jr. Your informant is in error. I was on board the yacht Dauntiess in a late yachting cruise. Mr. Bennett was in command, with four invited guests, among whom were Recorder Hackett of New York, and Mr. John G. Hecksher of Newport. While at sea, and a heavy swell on, I saw Mr. Hecksher take a clam-shell and hold it between his forenger and thumb and stand at twenty-two yards, or sixty feet, from the Recorder, who had in his hands Ballert effer, and I heard Mr. Bennett give the finger and thumb and stand at twenty-two yards, or nixty (ect, from the Recorder, who had in his hands a Ballard rifle; and I heard Mr. Bennett give the word to the Recorder—one, two, three—who then fired, and I saw the claim shell break in numberless pieces, fragments striking Mr. Heckshor on the hand and neek, just drawing blood. I then saw mr. Bennett's valet hold a corkscrew in his hand, and at the same distance, and at the word saw the Recorder shoot it out of his band. I also saw the Recorder kill a poke flying, with his rifle at geventy-one yards, nearly cutting his head off, at Cobb's Island, Virtina, and afteward saw him shoot two gulls on the wing. These leats were witnessed by upward of twenty persons.

President the Power to Pardon Bowen?
President Grant has pardoned Bowen the bigamist. But where did President Grant get the power to pardon him? The District of Columbia has a Territorial Constitution, and the Governor thereof lought, by rule, to be vested with the power of pardoning common criminals sentenced by the courts of the Territory. Bieauly is a common crime, and in no way an offence against the United States.
